Andy Muir’s Tulsa talk, May 30th 2019: “The True Performing Of It”

- The Slides: please note that there are more slides than there was time to discuss. Click here for THE PRESENTATION http://www.a-muir.co.uk/tulsa1.pptx

- The Audio: Important note: I presented without notes so some slips of the tongue were inevitable. At the end I mention that I am “not saying Dylan is the modern Shakespeare”. At this point I was being signalled re my time running out. What I meant to say was “I am not saying that Dylan is the equal of Shakespeare.” The first quote is pretty much what I was saying, though they are not the words I would use. The talk before me was by Robert W. Kvalvaag and called From “Tempest” to The Tempest, obviously therefore, I wanted to avoid clashing with his, even though the last chapter of my book has over 30,000 words on these two together. Click here for the AUDIO http://www.a-muir.co.uk/tulsatalk.mp3

- Click here for the FEEDBACK http://www.a-muir.co.uk/feedback.docx

- PHOTOGRAPHS by Duncan Hume, James Adams and Paul Raymond Till.

Buy the book! Signed copies here: https://tinyurl.com/yxnjcjog, from your favourite bookshops or online at the usual places.

“To be or not to be, that is the question”, “the answer is blowin’ in the wind.”